There is no choice on whether or not a women needs these products, they are essential.

Page 8: Universal provision of sanitary products

Q2. Do you think a universal, card-based system (modelled on the c-card system for free condoms) would be an effective means of providing sanitary products for free to those who need them?

Yes

The card should be available to anyone; card-holders should have unlimited access to free sanitary products

Please explain the reasons for your response.

history seems to indicate that when a system is put in place which is means tested in any way that it becomes more complex and costly. This should be regarded as a universal 'service' which will therefore be less bureaucratic

Q4. Do you have a view on which locations would be most suitable for dispensing free sanitary products (e.g. GP surgeries, pharmacies, community centres, health clinics)?

A combination of all of the above, in some communities there may only be easy access to one of the above

Page 11: Schools, colleges and universities

Q5. Do you agree that there should be specific obligations on schools, colleges and universities to make sanitary products available for free (via dispensers in toilets)?

Yes

Please explain the reasons for your response

Young girls in particular may end up being embarrassed if they unexpectedly require these products during the school day.

(a) Government and the public sector (e.g. local authorities, the NHS)		X

Keep the system as cheap and easy as possible, why even require a card. Most women and girls are easily identifiable as such!!
